RESEARCH TOPIC

The topic of the conference is the following one:

SUSTAINABLE METROPOLIZATION, CHALLENGES FOR THE 21st CENTURY

Urban life continues to offer competitive economic advantages compared to rural settlements, despite the problems that constantly arise, so that migration to cities keeps growing (Garrocho, 2011). In fact, the metropolitan phenomenon has intensified and expanded in recent years and the Montreal Declaration (UN, 2015) states that the main challenges for the coming years are socio-economic inequality, environmental and health degradation, mobility problems, provision of services and poor housing. More challenges need to be considered, such as the inclusion of different social groups, gender perspective, accessibility for people with reduced mobility, the privatization of public space and citizen participation. This conference seeks to become a forum for reflection on these and other challenges faced by metropolitan areas.

Thematic panels are the following:

1. Metropolization.
2. Mobility, accessibility and inclusion.
3. Sustainability and the Environment.
4. Other issues.
